

In God's Eyes

Patrick Goble

I think I know myself better than you do
And I believe we all can fail in God's eyes, in God's eyes
I don't question you. Don't question me; we'll get along just fine
I know it; I can feel it inside

I don't care if they stare, if they stare
They don't know me from Adam, and my secrets aren't there
I don't know them, but I hate them. I hate them
When they whisper sounds from above me, I couldn't blame them

Better watch yourself, boy. If you don't, you might fall
But whatever you do in this life, don't you ever stall

I don't care if they stare, if they stare
They don't know me from Adam, and my secrets aren't there
I don't know them, but I hate them. I hate them
When they whisper sounds from above me, I couldn't blame them

Now you know me better than anyone else has before
Give me three things to love, to cherish, and to adore

Take this power, hold it high above my head
Make me regret half of everything I've ever said
But do me one last favor before my final fold
Sing to me one last time. Help me to feel not so cold

I think you know me better than I used to
And I believe we always fail in God's eyes
I don't question you. Don't question me; we'll get along just fine
I know it; I can feel it inside
